What is Res-ver-a-trol?

For years, people have been marvelling at extended life expectancies of Europeans who drink red wine daily. Now the secret has been uncovered. Resveratrol has been at the center of ground-breaking anti-aging research and more recently, has been provided in a purified form for daily consumption.

The consumption of wine may play an important role in the health of the French diet. It has long been known that the skins of certain fruits (grapes, blueberries and cranberries) and wine contain a compound called resveratrol, which has beneficial antioxidant properties.

Our safe & effective Resveratrol Select product will help you lose weight, increase your energy levels and make you feel & look great.

In the Media

WebMD™

A new study show an ingredient found in red wine, which has previously show to prolong the life of worms and fruit flies, may extend the lifespan of vertebrate animals like fish and possibly humans.

CNN

Scientists have long known that red wine has its benefits. But a molecular compound found in the wine could prove to be one of the greatest break-throughs in the fight against aging.

FOX NEWS

Drinking red wine not only reduces your risk for cardiovascular disease, but it may also reduce your risk for lung cancer – especially if you are a current or ex-smoker, Reuters reported Thursday.

Clinical Research: Studies on Resveratrol

Based upon promising early results from laboratory studies, as well as a wide array of publicity, many leading researchers have examined the potential benefits.

The biggest medical discovery since antibiotics!

"This could arguably be the biggest medical discovery since antibiotics!" Recently Harvard University released a clinical study proving that a compound found in red wine called Resveratrol.

Red Wine and Resveratrol: Good for you heart?

"Recent research has indicated substance called resveratrol, which is found in the skin and seeds of grapes used to make wine, has promising heart-healthy benefits."
